Overview

You will write an essay that builds on essay 1, but this time you will write about the type of analysis that is most applicable to your group's domain. Think about the type of data collection you chose in essay 1 and think about what type of data analysis would be most applicable to that type of data. Why? What are the strengths of that sort of analysis in your domain? What are the weaknesses of the other types of analysis as they are applied to your domain?
